Since then Wheeler armed himself, and has been on lookout for his enemy. To-day Johnson, accompanied by three other men. came to the Junction looking for Wheeler. under the pretext of wanting to compromise the matter. Wheeler not believing in their sincerity, kept out of their sight and finally went to his room, and from the window watched their movements, and just as Johnson stepped from the railroad upon as Johnson stepped from the latitude upon the platform leading to the hotel he fired one barrel of his gun, which was loaded with nekshot, into Johnson's right side. Johnson sank upon the platform and died in a few minutes. Wheeler was arrested and taken to Danville jail.

Victoria Not a Success.

DENVER, COL., Sept. 1 .- The Tribune's Santa Fe special says advices have been neived from the south that a few scated hands of Apaches are raiding ranches out 60 miles from El Paso, and murder ing is reported. Victoria's main body is sill in the Condilaria mountains. Advices from Mexico are to the effect that Victoria has requested of the Mexican government a meeting for treaty purposes with conditional surrender in view. The Mexican government would not grant the request without consulting the United States government. This move of Vicuria's indicates that the forces of New Mexico and Texas combined are too much fr him, and knowing that the United States will accept nothing but an uncondisurrender, which would likely result is death, he wishes to make a condiand surrender to the Mexicans, which an hardly be accomplished, as Governor Tercussus, who will have much influence in the matter, is a heavy loser by Victo-

OKS,

ANOTHER RADICAL EVIL.

Two of the most efficient agents of civilization were the whipping post and the gallows. Radical mock humanity, Yankee-Radical humanity, has greatly lessened the value of the last and has done away with the first. They substituted a penitentiary as the constitutional panacea for crime, and to give it a fair show they wasted or stole the moneys which had been set aside for the maintenance of schools, another of civilization's agents as effective as whipping and hanging. The results of their work are befere us, and one of these results is an ever increasing burden upon the labor of honest men. He who has read the tables of State expenditures for the last twelve years, several times printed in THE NEWS, will have seen that the people pay more for the support of criminals than the entire expenses of the State amounted to within the memory of men yet little past middle age. The waste does not stop here. The criminal's family has to live in his absence. and a livelihood is had often by charity, oftener by theft. The effect morally is worse than the effect materially. Is there no remedy?

The remedy in a moral and econom ical point of view will be found in such a change of the Constitution as will allow a change not only in the degree, but in the nature of punishment. The Constitution now recognizes only four kinds of punishment: death, imprisonment, fine and removal from office. The first is by the terms of the Constitution limited to four cases: the last refers to official delinquencies and crimes which seldom occur. These two deducted, it will be seen how vast a number of crimes is punished with fine and imprisonment. But though these are nominally two in number they are, in point of fact, reduced to one; since it is a rare thing that criminals are able to pay a fine. Thus the punishment annexed to crimes and offences in this State is practically the penitentiary.

The apportionment of one common pun ishment for crimes so great in number and so wide in their range is false in principle, and carries the following practical evils: 1st. It condemns the convict for any great turpitude to one of the extrem penalties of the law-for such the penitentiary in itself is-and to associations which make him naturally and inevitably many times worse than when he went there. 2d. It throws the support of the criminal himself upon the community, and in large majority of cases his family also. 3d. It turns the convict back upon the community after he has become an adept in crime, and he sows broadcast wherever he goes the vices which he acquired there. The penitentiary ought to be reserved for those only whose gross crimes show their deep depravity and who are intended to be confined for life, or for a long term of years. In the former instance society has nothing to dread; for they will never be set at large; in the latter the number would be reduced to a minimum, for the number let loose upon society would be very small.

But the criminal must be punished, and if he cannot be punished by a fine, how else can he be reached except by im prisonment in the penitentiary? We answer by restoring corporal punishment, not corporal punishment to be absolutely imposed by the Judge, but conditionally, at the election of the convict. In all those of fences that were visited with corporal punishment at the time of the adoption of the Constitution, leave it optional with the convict to submit to stripes or go to the peni-

Corporal punishment was abolished upon the ground that it was the most degrading of all punishments. Now we think there has been a great deal of mawkish philanthropy, and a great deal of false logic in dulged on this subject. It is not the punishment, but the commission of the crime that degrades. Perhaps a rule of evidence may have given rise to this notion. In order to discredit a witness upon the ground that he had been guilty of an infamous offence, it was necessary to show that he had undergone the sentence of the law. To show the judgment of the court was not enough, because that judgment might have been reversed or a pardon might have issued. It was necessary therefore, to show that the judgment had been carried into effect. But this was mere rule of evidence: it was the crime and not the punishment which inflicted the

As far as regards the degradation in flicted by stripes or the penitentiary, taking public opinion as the measure we do not think it a question worth disputing about. If measured by the effects upon the convict himself, we think that of the penitentiary will found deepest and most lasting. He who has worn the convict's garb for months. who has witnessed the shudder of honest men at the thought of contact with him. who sees himself looked upon habitually as an outcast, and who has none but out casts as associates, will feel the sense of degradation to a greater degree than the man who has suffered a brief though severe chastisement, and then returns to the healthful occupations and humanizing tendencies of home. One of the first objects of punishment is reform. It is easy to see how all chance of reform is cut off by plunging the convict-very often his of fence is a slight larceny-among criminals, and making criminals his only companions for years. It is easy to see how he may be reformed by prompt punishment, and then returning him to the sphere of duty and human affections, especially when the affections are of that class that cling closes about the heart. He returns to home and its influences when the stern discipline which he has brought upon himself is fresh in his mind, and the two combined can thus have their proper effect. Again, he may if he pleases, emigrate to a distant country or another State, and start life anew. If he has lived long in the penitentiary, or among convicts out of it, all that by which he could be lifted up to healthy manhood is, without resort to extraordinary agencies, gone forever. Again, it would be a boon to the convict to extend to him the option. In the vast majority of cases he would gladly submit himself to stripes, for independent of every other consideration, who would care for his family when he was away? It is to be borne in mind that even rime cannot extinguish the affections; the worst criminal loves his wife and children. It is by the leverage of these better feelings that the criminal is brought back to virtue. Return him then, as soon as possible, to his home. It is clear that the community and the convict would both be gainers. The community would be relieved from the burden of the convict's support and that of his family. The convict would be returned to his home, his family, his business, and the wholesome influences which all these carry with them This system has worked well in Virginia.

CASWELL POLITICS.

The Democrats of Caswell have made eminently fit and proper nominations for the House of Representatives.

JACOB A. LONG, Esq., is a native of Alamance, but removed to Caswell six years since, and commencing the practice of the law at Yanceyville has established a high reputation. He will not only understand the making of laws, but also the needs of the farming people, his constituents; for he, too, is a farmer and not an undistinguished competitor of old tobacco planters, in quantity and quality of crops. Mr. Long is very popular, makes capital speech, and will canvass with vigor. Q. T. ANDERSON, Esq., the other Democratic nominee, is a young farmer of sense and influence. He was a candidate for the House in 1876, and Radical as Caswell was, failed of election by only eight votes. Our friends in Caswell think that with such candidates they are bound to succeed, and will do their level best.

PERSON COUNTY.

Capt. JAMES HOLEMAN, who is to re present Person in the next House of Representatives, is a thoroughly sensible and practical man, and though heretofore unconnected with politics is well informed on all public matters and especially such as concern the State. He comes, too, of good stock. The elder JAMES HOLEMAN. so well known thoughout the State before the war, was the only Whig who for many years could command a majority of the votes in Person. Democrats were as proud of him as the Whigs, and their votes were cheerfully given him when he could be induced to accept office. The son is "a chip of the old block," and will worthily represent his constituents.

THERE ARE countless small swindles the tariff, meaner because small than the big swindles. One of them is confessed by the Tribune, in an article elsewhere reprinted to-day, to make a point on Gen BUTLER who is interested in it, and who to make money for self and friends had his Radical brethren in Congress put a prohibitory duty on imports of nickel. This decreased the revenues $20,000 ; year, and added how much we cannot exactly tell to the taxation of the people who use nickel in hundreds of ways. It is supposed that it amounts to one million of dollars taken from the people and bestowed upon a few nickel mine-owners. These swindles, little and big, will go on until Congress is thoroughly Democratic and a Democrat is President. Then we shall be rid of a class of politicians whose notion is that it is right to make one set of men pay for what is used by another set of men; to force the reople to contribute to the wealth of a few.

A DECISIVE engagement between Ayoon KHAN's forces and the English must take place in a few days unless the Afghan chief declines the encounter by retreating. He has gone eastward a day's march from Candahar and has taken up a strong position on the line of General ROBERTS' advance. ROBERTS will have an available force of 14,000 men. The KHAN's army is of almost precisely the same strength. Under these circumstances there should be no doubt as to a complete victory for the English.

THE Newbernian is now issued daily. It is an excellent newspaper and we trust will be handsomely supported.

Twenty-five hundred people were in Ashboro yesterday to hear Gov. Jarvis, who was escorted into the town by fifty horsemen with banners and music. After dinner the crowd assembled on the Fair Grounds, a large number of ladies being present. Gov. Jarvis spoke for two hours, and was followed by Geo. B. Everitt, Esq., who was in turn followed by F. H. Busbee, Esq. At the conclusion of Mr. Busbee's speech the meeting adjourned until half-past seven. At that hour the enthusiastic crowd formed itself into a torchlight procession and marched to the Fair Grounds, bearing transparencies, on which were inscribed the legends: "The bayonet is not a fit in strument to collect the ballots of freemen; "R. P. Buxton, of the salt-petre bureau; "T. J. Jarvis, the plough-boy of Currituck.

On the arrival at the Fair Ground Gen. J. M. Leach spoke for an hour and a half. A choir, accompanied by Miss Thorne on the organ, sung "Oh! for Car-olina," and "The Red, White and Blue." Capt. F. N. Strudwick, Col. John N. Staples and Dr. J. M. Worth followed Gen. Leach, and the Governor wound up the ball, finishing his last speech at 11

Caswell.

Correspondence of THE RALEIGH NEWS

YANCEYVILLE, August 28, '80.
The Democrats of Caswell held their Convention in the Court House to-day Col. George Williamson presided. Wm Paylor, of Leasburg, and Major Blanton, of Milton, were Secretaries. Every township in the county was represented and considerable interest manifested. There seemed to be devotion and determination.

The nomination of candidates for the Legislature was the first order of business but before the names of candidates for nomination were announced,

Mr. McRary moved that the Conven tion nominate only one candidate and supported his motion in a speech of some length. The principal reason urged was that there were, or at least had always been a majority of Republicans in Caswell, and by nominating one candidate the Democrats would tender the olive branch and show willingness to compromise.

The motion was opposed in speeche made by Maj. Thompson and Judge Brandon, who took the ground that the time for compromise was passed, that we go into this election with no other feeling than success, and to nominate only one candidate, when the Rads had already two in the field, would be a publication of a feeling of weakness. The motion was de feated by a large vote.

Several good names were placed before the convention, and upon the casting and counting the vote of the first ballot it was ascertained that Jacob A. Long and Q. T. Anderson were nominated for the House of Representatives, having received a large majority of the votes cast.

The convention very wisely, as it is thought by a large majority with whom your correspondent has conversed, declined to make any further nominations for county officers—as by so doing no firebrand could possibly be thrown among the Democrats of the county.

Caswell is determined to have her share of the speeches made by canvassers of the State this year, and to induce them to come there is proposed to be given

ENORMOUS BARBECUES. taking it for granted that candidates, as a rule, are generally hungry fellows and cannot possibly resist the temptation of getting to places where the inner man can be satisfied in full. [Correspondence of THE RALEIGH NEWS.] Roxboro, August 30, 1880. EDITOR NEWS :- On last Saturday James Holeman was nominated as the Democratic candidate for the House of Representatives of the next Legislature. John Barnett, after a hot contest, was ominated for re-election as Sheriff. Chas. Mitchell for Treasurer, and W. E. Webb for Register of Deeds. A good ticket.

Col. Cuningham was recommended candidate to the Convention to nominate Senators for this District, at Prospect Hill next week, and will be selected.

Col. C. S. Winstead has just returned to the county having been absent several weeks on a visit to the Springs of Virginia, in company with his pretty and accomplished niece, Miss Mary Thompson, of Leasburg, and Miss Willie Lea, of the same place. They witnessed the grand display of Knights Templar in Chicago, the grandest pageant ever occurring in this country. The Colonel's health is now quite good, and many are anxious that he should take a tilt in the present canvass, feeling that if he would say a word at all, it would be in favor of the grand old Hero, General Hancock. The Colonel is very reticent, and no one knows exactly his politics today, but the Democrats of Person are willing to trust him, and he gives his friends permission, " to bet a hat he will vote for

THE TARIFF SWINDLE.

The Tribune Tells tales out of School.

[From the New York Tribune, 31st.] General Butler, in his reference to the tariff question, is guilty of paltry petti-fogging which will not help him or the party into which he now relapses. He knows full well the difference between a tariff for revenue and a tariff framed to protect home industries. No man knows better than General Butler that distinction; no man has taken more pains to apply it in its bearing upon industries in which he had personal interest; and no man is more widely understood to have been specially benefited by the legislation which he now pretends not to understand, and tries to befog people about. By way of illustration, the little nickel busiillustration, the little nickel busi-ness may be taken. In 1869, at a duty of only 15 per cent., imports of this article paid a duty of $20,149. That was a duty for revenue. Some persons, who may not be wholly unknown to General Butler, having discovered valuable deposits which they hoped to develope, the duty was raised in 1871 to 30 per cent., and in 1872 the revenue from imports of this article fell to $7,842. The precise object, as General Butler well knows, was to get less revenue by preventing importations. So thoroughly was that object attained, that in 1873 the entire revenue from imports of nickel fell to $767. Here over $19,000 of revenue was deliberately sacrificed, and General Butler, with every other intelligent man in the country, knows that it was done for the purpose of building up an industry in this land which, it was believed, would cain incalculably more by that process than the government or the people would lose in revenue sacrifice. Duties of this character become protective only because they check or restrain foreign competition. But this can be done only by some sacrifice of revenue.

New York Politics Transplanted.

[Special to N. Y. Herald, 31st ] WASHINGTON, August 30 .- Judge Bloxam, the Democratic candidate for Governor in Florida, is practicing Republican tactics, according to the reports received in Washington, by telling his auditors that the result in Florida is very doubtful, and every effort should be made to carry the State. But it is said that, by way of encouraging his supporters, he tells them that at the last election in Georgia he voted three times, and adds, "And don't you forget it." It is understood that the entire interest in the election in Florida on the Democratic side is centered in the success of the State ticket and the election of a Legislature that will return Senator Jones to the Senate. The greed for State offices, it is reported, quite obscures the importance of the electoral vote, just as it did four years ago, and it s said that the Republican managers are accordingly taking advantage of this state of things to make sure of the electoral the candidacy of ex-Senator Conover for Governor is only a blind, and that the reward will be satisfactory to all concerne if the electoral vote of the State is secured for the Garfield and Arthur electors.

Women in Politics.

[From the Washington Star.] The Democrats of Kansas have nomi nated Miss Sarah A. Brown for State Superintendent of Public Instruction. This s a new departure in politics, especially for the Democrats who have not, heretofore, favored "woman's rights." Miss Brown s at present superintendent of schools for Douglass county, and is credited with having accomplished a great deal more in that position than any of her male predecessors. The Democratic leaders in Kansas express the opinion that Miss Brown's nomination will strengthen their State ticket by drawing votes from the opposition. If this prediction shall prove correct, it will have the effect of popularizing the nomination of women for office by parties seeking to overcome an opposition majority. It would appear that the Democrats propose to enist the fair sex in their cause as much as possible in this campaign. In a recent interview with a delegation of women suffragists, Gen. Hancock assured them that if ected President he would not veto any bills of Congress looking to the enfranchisement of women. Miss Brown, the Kansas nominee, is described by a prominent Dem ocrat as "mighty brainy," and it is a fact that none will dispute, that there is plenty of room in political parties for additional

A Big Sleep.

[From the New York World ] Scareely less astonishing than Dr. Tan ner's recent feat of fasting is the condition of a young lady, the daughter of the Mayor of Grambke, a village near Bremen who is said to have been fast asleep ever since the second week in January, with the exception of a few hours of wakefulness at intervals of from six to eight weeks. An interesting account of her extraordinary state is published in the Hanover Courier. It appears that she lies, plunged in a profound slumber and entirely unconscious of all that goes on around her, night and day, reclining on her left side, warmly covered up and with a slight gauze spread over her head. Nourishment, chiefly in a liquid form, is daily administered to her, which she swallows with out awaking for a second. She is a pretty, slender girl, of pallid complexion, but she does not lose in weight during her trances of from forty to sixty days, and when awake exhibits a cheerful disposition and an eager desire to perform such small household tasks as her strength enables her to falfil. Her father is a well-to-do man, who has consulted several eminent nedical men in the hope of discovering some remedy for his daughter's abnormal condition, which entails serious inconvenience and constant anxiety upon the other members of his family, but all efforts hith erto made to keep the unlucky girl awake have resulted in total failure.

The Heir of Castile.

[By cable to the Herald, 31st.] MADRID, August 30, 1880.—On the occasion of the expected birth of an heir to the throne the Government will grant an amnesty to the Cuban insurgent leaders now imprisoned in Spain.

A much criticised royal decree enacts that the usual and ancient ceremonial shall be observed in the palace as soon as the royal physicians will declare that Her Majesty's delivery is close at hand. Lord Chamberlain, Duke of Sixto, already issued invitations to the diplomatic corps, whose chiefs must be present in the royal ante-chambers with the Ministers of the Crown, the chief authorities of Madrid, the principal prelates of the Church, the presidents, secretaries, and delegates of the two houses of Cortes, the delegates of the military and noble orders of knighthood, the deputies of the order of grandees and of the nobility, in all about 250 high functionaries and personages who must hold themselves in readiness at any hour of day and night to obey the invitation of the royal messengers. The event will be announced to Madrid by the firing of twenty-one guns it a Prince of Asturias is born, and by fifteen guns only if an infanta is the firstborn. A red flag in the first case and a white in the second will be hoisted, and if the event takes place at night red and white lights will be used. I will not forestall to-day the strange and stately ceremony of the birth when the poor Queen is delivered in presence of prelates, Ministers and the royal household, who have to be witnesses. Directly after the birth the royal child is placed on a silver basin, covered with a rich lace mantle, and the King carries the basin out to the distinguished assemblage in the ante-chamber, and, uncovering the infant, His Majesty allows all present to examine and attest the sex of the new-born ere the deed of birth is drawn up by the Minister of Grace and Justice as royal Prothonotary General. As you may imagine, this event is looked forward to by the royalists with anxious impatience, but I must say the nation at large eems to reveal very little interest and very little zeal in what courtiers believe will consolidate the dynasty. As the moment approaches court gossips grow daily more indiscreet. Some say that difficulties are apprehended in consequence of the presence in Madrid at the end of the month of the two royal and imperial mothersin-law—her of Spain and she of Austria. They have already rivalled in splendid presents for the future child of Queen Christina, and two exquisite cradles, covered with lace and satin, are awaiting the ittle welcome. Courtiers dwell at length upon the question of the name of the future prince or infanta. If an infanta is born this month her name will be Isabella and her two grand-mothers will hold her over the baptismal fonts. If a prince is given to King Alfonso great will be the perplexity about the selection of a name. harles was thought of, but then how could he be a Don Carlos like the Pretender? Philip is highly suggestive of a nand is full of recollections of the grandfather of King Alfonso, a name not very palatable to Spanish liberals. Nevertheless it is reported that a Prince of Asturias would be either Ferdinand or Philip de Bourbon. The title of Prince of Asturias is the ancient title of the heirs and firstborn of the sovereigns of Castile. In default of males the old laws of the monarchy allow princesses to assume this title as they admit them to the throne before cousins and uncles of the reigning branch No Salic law ever in Spain excluded wo men from the throne or from titles of no bility, and hence it is the great granded dukedoms and marquisates have passed

Among the new fabrics for the next eason brocades of all descriptions take the ead. Velour lumine is a velvet brocade. which sells at retail for $15 a yard. It has a ground of natural colored vines and lowers, filled in with velvet of black or solors. Plush brocades are similar in style and pattern, with the solid color of plush instead of velvet. They are from $4 to $7 a yard. Velours faconne is a somewhat similar fabric, with the pattern in plain colors. Cashmere bengalese is a new materia plain dress goods which will undoubtedly be very popular. It is of soft wool, drapes beautifully and resembles camel's nair cashmere. Crape de l'Inde is, as its name shows, the old India crape which the grandmothers of the present generation were familiar with. Grain de poudre has a fine raised grain-like texture upon its face: it is a most expensive material and will not interfere with the popularity of the last named favorite. Drap tricotine is a new material very much like stachinette, but with a much finer finish. Drap d'Islande is a new cloth with the finish of satin without its lustre. Drap invisible has a check woven through it which shows only in certain lights. Checks and plaids are largely imported for fall, and both are brilliant and subdued in their coloring. One style has a fine check within a plaid. A novelty which will undoubtedly be very popular i the mouchoir Madras of all wool Chudds cloth thirty-six inches wide. Damasse silks have larger figures, more separated than those formerly used. In these goods and satin de Lyon those of home manufacture are superior to the imported goods of the same price, and many houses deal in them almost entirely, as they can give a guarantee for their durability, which they cannot do for imported goods. The novelties imported in Oriental trimmings do not differ, except in color, from those used during the past season. Cashmere, Chinese, Indian and Persian patterns predominate in the goods. In price they range from $1 to $5 a yard.

There is no set style of making up the trimmed skirts, being both worn, the latter valued at $13,785,269; $4,606,353 more about 26,000 spindles, 900 looms, and employ nearly 1,000 hands. being most in favor for the street. Short

These are lined with maroon plush and a puff of gossamer green satin is in-serted the whole length of the skirt. Puffings, ruffles and bands of plush finish the edge of the skirt and back draperies and the basque is entirely separated from it. Storms Everywhere. [Telegrams to the Herald, 31st.] London, August 30.—Rotheran an neighborhood was visited last night by a most violent thunder storm. The rain was heavier than were experienced for a very ong period. During the early hours of this morning Ayles bury was visited by a severe thunder storm which lasted about four hours. The downpour of rain was exceedingly heavy and the lightning incessant. The crops were greatly damaged and several houses flooded. The atmospheric disturbance at Windson prevented many of the residents from deeping. # Yankee Brutality.

[New York Times 31st.]

The murder of Harward, the young Brooklyn lawyer, on Sunday morning, be longs to a class of crimes which society is powerless to prevent. Two young men are strolling about the streets at 2 o'clock in the morning. They meet two women who are being annoyed by "three rough-looking men," and are asked to protect the women. Without stopping to consider that the women are of a class who voluntarily put themselves in the way of annoyances, the two young men interfere in their behalf and hard words ensue. Blows are struck on both sides, the rough-looking men draw knives, one of the young men is cut about the head and neck, the other is stabled to the heart and dies in the street. No police force, however numerous or efficient, can prevent such murders from being occasion ally committed. It is true that the posting of a stalwart policeman on every corner would tend to diminish all kinds of brawls. murderous and otherwise, but we have not yet reached a point where it is thought wise or necessary to line our streets with guardians of the peace to that extent. Meanwhile, parties of young men go about nights from beer-saloons to sample-rooms, from billiard-halls to bowling-alleys; they drink, get noisy or quarrelsome, encounter other parties in the same condition: somebody is jostled in passing, or a taunting word is uttered; fists, pistols, and knives are called into instant use, and before the bystanders or the police can interfere some young fellow's life-blood is crimsoning the paving-stones. The fate of young Harward is liable to overtake any man who has occasion for business or pleasure to walk the streets of New-York or Brooklyn or any other city. Sobriety and peaceful behavior will not insure a man from attack. It is not pleasant to feel that in a community which calls itself peaceful and highly civilized the gentleman who leaves his house for an evening stroll, or goes out with his wife or daughter, is actually venturing into the presence of a known and appreciable danger. Of course, the majority escape, but those who are less fortunate are numerous enough to prove that the danger does exist. It is a matter of common knowledge that the "rough" is everywhere. He is to be seen in all places of public resort. He is not necessarily a vagrant or a drunkard. He may even appear in the garb of a gentleman. But his ugly temper, offensive manner, and reckless disregard of the comfort and rights of others betray his character. In certain well-known quarters in New York tion. Legal Prosecutions of Animals. [WILLIAM JONES, F. S. A.]

Among the strange practices of old times nothing can be conceived more trail absurd than the trial, by legal proceeding of animals accused of high misdemeanors, which prevailed, more or less, from the twelfth to the seventeenth centuries, and present a curious picture of the habits of thought during those ha The trials in question were conducted with all the solemnity of the law. In ev. ery instance advocates were assigned to de. fend the animals. Domestic animals were tried in the ordinary criminal courts; wild animals of a noxious description, such as rats, locusts, caterpillars, and such like were subjected to the ecclesiastical courts The first excommunication fulminated against animals is recorded in the twelfth century. St. Foix, in his "Essais Histo riques sur Paris," states that the Bishop of Laon pronounced in 1120 an injune-tion against the caterpillars and field. mice, on account of the ravages they made on the crops.

The mode of trial in the criminal courts was this: The accused animal was com. mitted to prison; the procureur, or officer who exercised the functions of prosecute at the court, after hearing witnesses and taking down their depositions, and the crime of homicide being proved, the judo, condemned the animal to be strangled, and hung by the back-legs to an oak-tree, or a gibbet, according to the custom of the country. In the case of damages done to property, the inhabitants of a district suffering therefrom, experts were appointed by the court to survey and report on the subject. A lawyer was then appointed to defend the animals, and show cause why they should not be summoned before instice. They were then called three times, and, not appearing, judgment was given against them in default. The count then issued an admonition, warning then to leave the district within a certain time at the expiration of which, if they were still contumacious, they were to be anathematized with all due solemnity. In stead, however, of feeling the effects of this terrible sentence, it is recorded that is some instances the noxious animals of trary to "withering off the face of the earth," became more abundant and structive. This the lawyers attributed neither to the injustice of the sentence nor want of power of the court, but the machinations of Satan, who, as in the case of Job, is at certain times permitted to tempt and annoy mankind.

From the thirteenth to the sixteenth century there are numerous examples of proceedings in the criminal court in the case of pigs (and sows, more particularly) who had devoured children. As one may see at present in certain localities, thes animals in the middle ages ran about the streets of villages, and were it would seem, more addicted a liking for human flesh than, happil -grace to the refinements of time-t ment de l'Aisne" (1812) are full details the sentence pronounced on a hog (June 14, 1494) by the Mayor of St. Martin Laon, for having defacie and strangled child in its cradle. The sentence conclude thus: "We, in detestation and horn this crime, and in order to make an exa ple and satisfy justice, have declared, judged, sentenced, pronounced, and ap-pointed, that the said hog, being detained prisoner and confined in the said abbe shall be, by the executioner, hung and strangled on a gibbet near and adjoining the gallows in the jurisdiction of the said monks (of St. Martin de Laon), being near their copyhold of Avin. In witness which we have sealed this present with our seal." This was done on the 14th day of June, in the year 1494, and sealed with red wax, and upon the back is written. "Sentence on a hog executed by justice. brought into the copyhold of Clermont, and strangled on a gibbet at Avin." In 1497 a sow was condemned to be beaten to death for having eaten the chin of a child belonging to the village of Charonne. The sentence declared that the flesh of the sow should be thrown to the dogs, and that the owner of the animal and his wife should make a pilgrimage to Notre Dame de Pontoise, where, being the day of Pentecost, they should cry "Mercy!" after which they were to bring back a certificate. The ex ecution of these animals was public and solemn; sometimes they were clothed like men. In 1386 the judge at Falaise con demned a sow to be mutilated in the and head, and afterward to be hung, for having torn the face and arm and the killed a child. This was a Draeonial method of punishment. This sow was executed in the public square, clothed it a man's dress. The execution cost to sous, six deniers tournois, besides a ne glove for the executioner. Bulls shared with swine the same mode of trial and punishment; horses, guilty of homicide, had a similar order The registers of Diion record that 1389 one was condemned to death having killed a man.

FROM CELLAR TO GARRET .- Shakespeare said, "there is a tide in the affairs men," but whether he referred to the affairs of all men is not certain. But the remark is applicable to merchants and especially Raleigh merchants. Some of them have struck "high tide," if we may judge by the activity among their clerks, which makes it uncomfortable for loafers to be around them. Yesterday, for instance, the rattle of hammer and chisel, the tumbling of boxes, the rush and bustle of coatless clerks, the crowd of customers that thronged the store of Mr. J. P. Gulley attracted us thither and we at once took in the situation. We made a silent inspection tour from garret to cellar and intended to say something about what we saw, but, as might have been expected from so good a business man, when we reached for our pencil last night we saw before us his adtertisement, which tells it all in a nutshell, and we don't wonder that he should ess of about two weeks.

Dr. Jones was born in Wake county on the 29th day of April, 1849. His boy-hood was spent in Raleigh, where he was prepared for college under the late Mr. Lovejoy. On finishing the academic course Dr. Jones went to Wake Forest College, where he was graduated in 1869. He then studied medicine in Raleigh under Dr. E. Burke Haywood, whence he went to New York, and was, in 1873, graduated from the Bellevue College of Medicine. He at once engaged in the practice of his profession in Wake county, and when he moved to Raleigh, in 1876, he was already known as one who promised great future usefulness. Since his removal to Raleigh Dr. Jones had risen steadily in the estimation of the public and of his professional brethren. He was a very reticent, undemonstrative man, but those who gained his friendship found that under this cold exterior his heart was a well of deep affection, and those who called him friend loved him very dearly. He was a man of splendid personal appearance, tall and strongly built, and gave every indication of being destined for a long life of usefulness. Dr. Jones was a member of the Raleigh Academy of Medicine and of the Knights of Honor. The former of these two organizations met last night to take action in relation to his death. It was resolved that the Academy would attend the funeral, which takes place from the 1st Baptist Church, of which Dr. Jones was a member, at 4:30 p. m., and a committee, consisting of Drs. R. B. Haywood, James McKee and A. W. Knox, were appointed to draft resolutions and report to an adjourned meeting at 4 p. m.

RALEIGH AND RIFLE MATCHES-HURRAH FOR OUR SIDE !-- It's hard to beat Raleigh on anything connected with shooting. Our team went up to Hendersonville and beat everything there—and the team of the Carolina Rifle Club was victorious in the match for the championship of the State, shot yesterday afternoon, beating the Fayetteville team by a score of 362 to 356. The best individual score was by Mr. Chas. A. Hearn, of Fayetteville who made 45 out of a possible 50. The best score in the Raleigh team was 42, made by Dr. Richard H. Lewis and

Mr. C. B. Raney. We give below the full score of the Raleigh team: Batchelor, J. B.

and A. P. C. Bryan, acted as judges for the Favetteville team. Raleigh will send a team of five to the Fair, and if they don't beat everything we can't go to any circuses next year.

State Agricultural Society yesterday were two of the best friends of our State Fair, residing out of Raleigh. One of these was Frank Fries, Esq., of Salem, and the other George Allen of Newbern. The former has long been a leading manufacturer of the West, his Salem jeans being known all over the country, and the latter is one of the most earnest workers for progressive farming that Eastern Carolina knows. Mr. Allen's facts and figures show that the truck farmers of the East are upon the threshold of prosperity such as our forefathers never dreamed of. With the opening of the railroad to Elizabeth City before the next spring crop, and a line of steamers from Newbern to that point, the green crops will be put in the New York market at such a gain of time as to stimulate the trade of that section to enormous proportions. Mr. Allen is giving his valuable aid in behalf of our Fair. Mr. Fries informs us that his firm will make a full exhibit at our State Fair, October 18th next, of what their firm is doing in the way of home manufactures. Good, and may all our manufacturers do likewise. We little know the numberless wheels of industry hid away in modest labor throughout North Carolina.

ALMOST A FIRE.—Tuesday night a kerosene lamp in Mrs. Wayne Allcott's room, on Fayetteville street, took fire, the blaze nearly reaching the ceiling. Mrs. Allcott gave the alarm, and Mr. M. B. Barbee, who happened to be passing at the time, took the blazing lamp up and carried it down the stairs into the street, where it was extinguished. It was a very gallant act of Mr. Barbee's, and we are glad the only burns he received in doing it were very slight.

MORE ABOUT THE HORSE OPERA .-To-morrow morning about the time we are crawling homeward a train of palace cars will roll into the Raleigh depot having on board the thousand men and horses composing Coup's Newly United Monster Shows, and a little later in the day the magnificent pageant will parade our streets, and, by the way, the Louisville Courier-Journal says that a peep at this parade is alone worth the price of admission to an ordinary circus. All the wagons are newly Among the visitors at the office of the painted and adorned with bright landscapes, and as the procession moves through the principal thoroughfares it makes one long glittering splendor. A Napoleon gilded coach is a noticeable feature in the many noticeable attractions. The large wagon on which are seated one of the lady performers and four mailed knights comes in for a share of its notice. By far the most interesting part of the whole procession was the vehicle which contained the Japanese. The little Japs are the objects of boundless admiration from the crowd of colored men and women, and they seemed to enjoy the bustle and stir of the scene, if the keen twinkle in their eyes is any indication. The fact seems to be that Mr. Coun has entirely swung clear of the old circus traditions, and has put his show on the road in a manner to which former shows were strangers. To do this it takes money and brains, and Mr. Coup has both. His wealth is shown by the lavish manner in which every feature of his circus is made simply perfect and he has proved himself the possessor of brains by originating and carrying to perfection the two most gigantic show enterprises which ever entered mortal brains.

The IMMENSE HIPPODROME

which was so prominent a feature of New York a few years ago, originated in the big brain of this remarkable man, and while it went under Barnum's name he never saw it until it was proven a big success. And just here occurs to us a fact which shows that Mr. Coup has a heart as big as his head. The great æronant Donelson was killed while in the employment of Messrs. Barnum & Coup. Coup has, since that time, taken entire charge of his family and has sworn that no balloon ascent Mall ever be part of his show again. If Mr. Coup would put himself in a cage, our readers would readily believe, after this description of him, that he'd be one of the biggest features of his own show. But the things he has got in his cages are good enough for the likes of us. The big devil fish, the baby sea lion, the monkeys, bears, lions and everything in the world that can be thought of, are to be found in the menagerie tent of Coup's canvas-covered city. And then on into the next tent, gentlemen, where the smell of saw-dust gives token of the presence of the MAGIC RING. Since we saw La Belle Loyale flash through the hoops, way back in the '50's, we have had a marvellous weakness for tarletan skirts and chalked slippers, and when Katie Stokes mounts for her bare back ride, look for us among the bald heads; and then when James Melville and Sam Wilson, and all of them commence getting in their work, But the foreman says THE NEWS for once is crowded, and so we conclude with an extract from a private letter from Weldon. * * * "W. C. Coupshowed here to-day. The performance was the best ever seen South. The trained horses are splendid. More annimals than were ever exhibited by one show in the South."

Noah's gentle showers: A New Orleans paper refers to the weather of the previous day as being marked by "one of those gentle showers such as induced Noah to clear for Mount Ararat with his highly-miscellaneous cargo."

The Raleigh Light Infantiy.

EDITOR NEWS :- Please allow us short space in THE NEWS to say a few words in behalf of this noble and handsome company. It is really distressing to us, and should be mortifying to every citizen of Raleigh, to witness the thin ranks of this company on their regular parades, and especially so should it have been a few days since, when the Raleigh Light Infantry escorted the remains of the late lamented Col. W. H. Harrison to their last resting place with four sections of four when, but a short time since, it was not unusual for the company to muster nine and ten sections. Why this falling off and seeming want of interest in the Company's prosperity? It certainly is not the fault of the officers of the Company, for no company in the State is better officered than the Raleigh Light Infantry. Capt. Ferrall and his Lieutenants—Pullen, Sherwood and Upchurch—take every interest in the success of the Company. They give their time and means liberally for its organization and equipment, and we are assured that the rank and file also are not wanting in these respects. The Raleigh Light Infantry never left home without bringing back honors won on well contested fields, and now when the great event of 1880 is about to take place, (King's Mountain Celebration,) and many companies of the State Guard are writing and telegraphing to the Adjutant General that they expect to take part in that Grand Jubilee with forty or fifty men, shall Company A, 1st Regiment North Carolina State Guard (Raleigh Light Infantry,) fail to put in an appearance for want of members? No. Let the good citizens of Raleigh say no. We can safely say that it will not be the Company's fault. Most of the members of the Company are of quite limited pecuniary means and are, therefore, without a heavy strain on them unable to bear the expense of perfect equipment, and hence the Company, through their Committee, propose to give an entertainment sometime during the present month which they hope will enable them to compete with any of the Guard. Should they not meet with the encouragement anticipated and thereby be deprived of the pleasure of attending the celebration they will remain at home; and when the successful Knight, on return from that grand Jubilee shall pass through our city and shall be met by our noble little band with heads erect and eyes to the right, and shall see their beautiful trophies conspicuously and tauntingly displayed, they can cast their eyes to the front and say to them, "shake not thy gory locks at me, thou can'st not say I did it." GLEANINGS FROM STATE EXCHANGES.

The Newbernian learns that "a freight combination has been formed between the Richmond & Danville, Wilmington & Weldon, and the Atlantic & North Carolina Railroads. If this be so, then the question of the lease of the Atlantic & North Carolina Railroad, which has for some time since yexed our people and caused much bad blood, is virtually settled. It is true, that the proposition of Mr. McLean and also that of Capt. Appleton Oaksmith is still open for the consideration of the stockholders, but it is generally accepted that they will not elicit or command more than a respectful hearing and then prompt dismissal. And so, after having done much harm without a shadow of corresponding good, the lease question ends."

STATE POLITICAL NOTES :-The Macon Democrats have decided to make no nominations for county offices. Governor John Reid is a candidate for re-ection to the House. A. Burwell, Esq., is Mecklenburg's nominee for the Senate, and Messrs. Edgar H. Walker and A. G. Neal are to come to the House.

The Democrats of the Forty-second District met in convention at Franklin on August 26th, and nominated B. K. Dickey, Esq., of Cherokee, for the Senate in place of Gov. Robinson.

Lieut-Gov. Robinson, we learn, has been doing good service on the stump in the mountain counties, and Attorney-General Kenan has devoted all the time his duties left him to the counties of the centre. We to-day publish a list of appointments for these gentlemen, beginning with the 4th of October and running through that month. Col. Kenan will also speak at the Gulf, in Chatham county, on Tuesday, and at Lockville on Wednesday of next week.

FRANKLIN ITEMS:-Franklinton, N. C., Sept. 1, 1880.— We have just visited Oxford, Oak Hill, Blue Wing, Walnut Grove and Tally Ho. in Granville county, and we have not seen the Democracy more earnest nor the Rads less hopeful than at present. There is every reason to hope for the election of a full Democratic ticket. Next Saturday at Wilton the Hancock and Jarvis Club meet and have secured for speakers on the occasion Col. George Wortham, Capt. A. H. A. Williams, of Oxford, and Col. W. F. Green, of Franklin.

Here everything is lovely. With Har-ris, Cooke and Kearney for our standardbearers we can cheerfully take success by her coy hands and bravely bid defeat "avaunt."

Butler Declines... The Bay State Demoeratic Ticket.

Worcester, September 1.—The Committee on permanent organization recommended that Hon. P. A. Collins, of Boston, be permanent chairman, which was received with enthusiasm. Mr. Collins addressed the Convention in a speech of twenty minutes, and was vociferously applauded throughout.

A Committee was then appointed on After the announcement of the Vice

Mr. Brady, of Attleboro, moved as an amendment to Mr. Tarbox's motion that the Convention nominate Gen. B. F. Butler, of Lowell, for Governor by acclamation. The motion was made amid loud cheers and confusion.

Mr. Allen, of Holyoke moved to reconsider the motion whereby the Convention voted to proceed to ballot. At this point the chairman presented General

Butler to the Convention. General Butler said: "I rise to speak on the subject of reconsideration, the alternative being the use of my name by accla mation. A fair and free ballot is the pledge of the Democracy to the country. Then there is another consideration; when say a thing I mean it and when I mean a thing, I say it. I have declared that under no consideration would I be subject for an elective office under the incoming administration, for reasons which I have deemed sufficient. This is my position before the country. First I have come out from the Republican party. I have stated my reasons for it. If these reasons would have any weight with the republic they should have been the result of careful thought and not a bid for office. Second if I did stand as a candidate men would talk about my changing ideas and the result would be injurious to the united party. Let me fight one year in the ranks or three or four or five years if necessary. One other reason I will state to you. For a year or two I have sought by aid of the Democratic party to reform the abuses in the State. A portion of the Democrats, for honest reason, have opposed this use of the Democratic party, but I trust they have done so with no considerable bitter-

The September States.

[From the Washington Star.] The States holding elections in September are Arkansas on the 6th, Vermont on the 7th, and Maine on the 13th. In Arkansas there is scarcely any political issue involved, as the Republicans are making no contest. In the September election in Arkansas four years ago the Democrats carried the State by 34,000 majority, and the Presidential election in November by 20,000. The only issue that will be contested in this election will be that of the question of repudiation, which appears in the form of an amendment to the Constitution forbidding the payment of the State funded debt. Some of the foremost men in Arkansas are making a decided stand against the repudiation disgrace, and confidence is expressed that the project will be defeated. Vermont is as one-sidedly Republican as Arkansas is Democratic, and conse quently the Democrats have no expectation of earrying the State, but they are making an animated fight to reduce the Republican majority, doubtless for effect on other States. At the September election in Vermont in 1876 the Republican majority was 23,660, and in November following was 23.838. The great interest is centered upon the Maine election in consequence of the sharpness of the contest there, and the importance of the stake. Since the Republican revolution of 1860, when Hannibal Hamlin abjured Democracy, and was elected governor by the Republicans by 17,881 majority over the combined vote of the Democrats and Bell-Everett men, Maine has been Republican until 1878, when the Greenback vote of 41,404 with the Democratic vote of 27,872 gave a majority against the Republicans of 7,243 and elected both branches of the Legislature and two of the five members of Congress. In 1879 the Greenback-Democratic combination had 492 majority over the Republicans, but the latter carried both branches of the Legislature and elected the Governor despite what is pretty justly styled the attempt of the fusionists to "steal the State." In Maine, it must be remembered, it requires a majority of Gentlemen, I thank you for your all the votes cast to elect a State ticket. plurality over his highest competitor, but he was beaten under the majority law by 7,243. In 1879 Gov. Davis received 21,176 plurality over his highest competitor, but he was defeated by about 1,000 majority and had to be chosen by the Legislature. Amendments to the Constitution of the State are now pending for adoption or rejection by the people substituting the usual system of electing by plurality. It is also proposed to postpone State elections hereafter to November. The Republican majorities in Presidential years since the party came in power in Maine, have been as follows: September, 1856, 17,881; November, 1856, 24,774; September, 1860, 18,091; November, 1860, 24,904; September, 1864, 15,915; November, 1863, 17,592; September, 1868, 20,403; November, 1868, 28,030; September, 1872, 17,206; November, 1872, 32,335; September, 1876, 15,459; November, 1876, 16,286. Since 1876 the Republican majorities have been whittled down to nothing, and though the probability is that the Republicans will carry the State both in September and November, they will doubtless be very well content if they get half the majority of the last Presidential

NEW YORK, August 31.-News of a severe storm along the Atlantic coast, damaging the cotton crop in southwestern Georgia and extending to Florida, had the effect of arresting the bear depredations upon the market, but not until they had driven Septembers down to 10.98, Octobers to 10.53 and Decembers to 10.43. Cotton in this market to-day is one cent and a quarter below what it could be bought for in New Orleans and laid down here, and the object in keeping the price down is said to be to prevent the new crop from reaching here freely in September, and thus make a corner possible. That there has long existed a large short interest in Septembers is generally believed, and that interest has been increased considerably since Friday last. The quotation advanced at the close to 11:14.

[New York Tribune.] An investigation of the present condition and prospects of trade shows a very encouraging state of affairs. The heavy trade that set in last fall has continued to the present time with little interruption, and there is a general feeling among mer-chants that this season it will be greatly augmented. The southern trade is the best for years. The crops, both in the West and South, are abundant; but while the improvement is general throughout the whole country, the greatest increase has taken place in the Southern States. The cotton crop is reported unusually large, especially in Texas. The rice, sugar, and other crops are also large. The manufacturing industries of the country have advanced materially during the year, including the cotton factories in the Southern States. Altogether, the merchants of New York feel in a very sunny and hopeful frame of mind.
